MAD Update

Longtime MAD member George Fleming would love to hear from you. George was involved in many MAD shows over the years. His first MAD show was “The Lady’s Not for Burning” in 1973 and his first music was that fall’s production of “South Pacific.” His last show was the 2000 production of “South Pacific.” He also played the lead in MAD’s first winter show, 1983’s “Tribute.” George has been in the hospital at least twice over the last couple of years with mini-strokes. While he’s still able to get around his NYC apartment and go for short walks, he’s not able to socialize much the way he used to. He welcomes calls from his MAD friends at 212-285-1836.
